From working as Senior Science Editor at NASA to five-time Webby Award-winning expert, to media influencer with 135,000 followers on TikTok, Laura’s achievements speak volumes. She built NASA’s Global Climate Change website into a digital powerhouse, and her popular Earth Right Now blog showcased her ability to blend personality, emotion, and humor with scientific precision.

Laura continues to cultivate relationships with senior NASA scientists and global leaders. As a professor and author of college-level textbooks, she has been able to share her knowledge with younger audiences as well.

Through innovative and impactful storytelling, Laura navigates the complexities of climate science. She can translate the complex concepts into language the public can comprehend without compromising scientific accuracy or nuance while empowering others to participate in solutions to environmental challenges that we desperately need.
